Adams Harris University Overview

Adams Harris offers a range of educational solutions within its core practice areas of internal audit, accounting and finance, corporate tax and technology. Each Adams Harris University (AHU) program is customized, taking into account the experience and education levels of the participants and the objectives of the session. Additionally, each course goes through an internal quality review to verify that the content is completely accurate and up-to-date.

Benefits of Adams Harris University include:

- Adams Harris is certified to award CPE credit for completion of our courses as a sponsor of continuing professional education with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy.
- Adams Harris instructors can provide educational solutions at a client site, third party location or any of our facilities. We currently have four locations and are growing each year, which means inexpensive AHU training solutions are always nearby.
- Private Adams Harris University courses can be customized to incorporate an organization's specific software programs or actual company data. Using actual data increases participation and retention and allows the participants to immediately apply the knowledge attained in the class.
